

The lights go out.

Three actors role scaffolding in front of black curtain and begin placing boxes to build a cave and two people light their way with flashlights.

They pull down a piece of fabric on the top.

The actors step back and look at their work.

Two of them walk away as the one in the middle enters the cave.

This actor has a small light that they reveal and then conceal again.

End scene